

Columbia University is dedicated to facilitating equal access for students with disabilities and to cultivating a campus culture that is sensitive and responsive to the needs of students. To request an accommodation for a disability during the course, students are welcome to reach out to the University's Office of Disability Services (ODS), to the Academic Counselors in Student Services, or to the instructor. (In general, students may decide whether or not to inform their professors of any accommodations, as they prefer. But note that individual exam arrangements are generally not discussed with the professor.) In order to receive disability-related academic accommodations for this course, students must first be registered with the ODS. To start the registration process with ODS, please contact disability@columbia.edu. For further information and any questions, please contact accommodations@law.columbia.edu.
